DRAFT - 7 -

On the 2nd of May, 1863, we were at the Indianapolis, Indiana, fair, where we had a very busy day. In the evening, we made our way to the hotel, and had dinner with General T. C. Hindman, and Dr. H. Jones, who had come to Indianapolis to speak to us, to get us informed concerning the present condition of the South. It was his opinion, however, to be incorrect in the result of his interview, to the report he received that the instrument and the secretaries of the South, as he understood them to be, were in the same position.
